Irma Citizens Honor Returned Men, Boys and Girls at Enjoy- able Welcome Home Banquet

Around a hundred and twenty boys with their wives, mothers, or sweethearts, along with a number of special guests partook of one of the nicest banquets ever served in Irma at Kiefer's hall last Wednesday evening. The hall was gaily decorated for the occasion with red, white and blue streamers and flags. The long tables looked lovely laid in white linen and silver with in pastel shade cream and vases of rose buds in deep cream and dainty pink.

Following a sumptuous supper that started with tomato juice cocktail and ended with brick ice cream and angel food cake. The chairman, Mr. Inglis took charge of the program, the first of which was greetings from the citizens of the village on a 4' triet by the mayor, Mr. V. Hutchinson in which he said he was pleased and honored to be the one to extend the hand of welcome to all returned boys, girls and families. Following this, the toast to the King was very ably proposed by Mr. Wm. Masson M.L.A. and responded to by all joining to sing the National Anthem and "There'll Always Be An England."

The toast to the returned men was proposed by Mr. Targett, a veteran of the first World War, and Mr. Ralph Congdon, pres. of the Irma branch of the Canadian Legion, in a very pleasing manner gave the response after which all joined in singing "We're Glad to See You Here." The next item on the program was a solo by Mrs. Vera Simmermon accompanied by Miss Aletha Knudson. She sang "Keep Right on to the End of the Road" and responded to an encore.

Mr. Donald Matheson, in proposing a toast to the wives, mothers and sweethearts, spoke very feelingly of the important part played by the ladies in winning the war and Mrs. Ervin Prosser replied to the kind words spoken after which all sang "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," and "Irish Eyes are Smiling."

Following this, Miss Targett added another high light to the program by her rendition of the reading "The Ball Game" and came back for an encore. The toast to the Vets of 1914-18 was proposed by Mr. C. Milne, his subject was well chosen as was the splendid reply by Mr. Wm. Stewart and the boys back to the Peace.

The annual Easter tea and sale of aprons sponsored by the Ladies Aid will be held Saturday, April 20 in the church.

There will be special music at the United church at the Easter service on Sunday April 21.

WHAT CAN READY MONEY MEAN TO THE GO-AHEAD FARMER?

It can mean the difference between just getting by and being really successful in his enterprise. It can enable him to achieve his ambitions to make his farm more productive, more profitable, more comfortable.

For the go-ahead farmer, who may be short of ready money, many modern farm improvements are now within easy reach with a B of M loan.

Here's a partial check list of improvements for which ready money is available:

New improved agricultural implements and equipment; new livestock for building up the herd; farm buildings, repairs and extensions; new electrical systems; fencing, drainage and land improvement; installation of lighting, heating and water systems; electrical aids, washing machines, cream separators, refrigeration, motors, milking machines, etc.

Take advantage of the ready money available at the Bank of Montreal to help you pay for such improvements. Call on Mr. Purcell, acting manager of the Bank of Montreal. You will find that he knows and understands the farmer's problems and that he is eager to help you go ahead and get your full share of the rewards that lie in high agricultural production.

An Empire Scientific Conference

MANY LESSONS in international co-operation were learned during the war, and some have proved so valuable that they will continue to be applied to advantage in time of peace. It has recently been announced that an Empire Scientific Conference, to be opened by His Majesty the King, will be held in London, Cambridge, and Oxford in June and July of this year. This conference is the result of close co-operation in scientific work which developed during the war. At that time the British Commonwealth Scientific Office was set up for the purpose of co-ordinating research in various parts of the Empire and for providing a central bureau for the interchange of opinion with the United States on matters related to scientific warfare.

Many Urgent Problems Now

It is now believed that the scientific problems of peace are no less urgent than those of war and that it would be advantageous to continue to co-ordinate the work of scientists in all parts of the Empire. The London Times commenting on the forthcoming conference says "Within the Empire, the scientific problems of peace, both technical and academic, are no less pressing than those of war. There are, for instance, urgent questions of medicine, especially tropical medicine, agriculture, nutritional science and the world fishing industry, while in the more academic field radio communications and cosmic rays present problems which can only be solved by joint efforts in all parts of the globe." It is expected it will be proposed at the conference that the British Commonwealth Scientific Office be succeeded by a similar organization to carry on this important work.

May Be Benefit To Agriculture

Imperial scientific collaboration has been carried on in the past, on a scale less far reaching than that which developed during the war. One of the most successful examples of the centralization of work for the benefit of the whole Empire has been in respect to agriculture. In 1929 the Council of Imperial Agricultural Bureaux was formed to act as a clearing house for information concerning soil, animal health, forestry and other subjects related to agriculture. It is probable that agriculture will profit to a large extent from the post-war activity of Empire scientists. There is much interest at present in increasing world food supplies, in finding new uses for surplus farm products and in many other problems which would no doubt benefit from a co-operative effort at their solution such as was applied to scientific problems during the war.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—How many cans of fruit can I purchase with one sugar-preserves coupon?

A.—One sugar-preserves coupon is good for two 20 fluid ounce tins of fruit. If you wish to buy only one can at a time, the grocer may make up the difference with one jar of jam or the proper quantity of any other rationed preserves, such as honey, molasses or maple syrup.

Q.—We are planning on holding a sports day on the 24th of May. Will we be allowed to sell hot dogs and hamburgers on that day?

A.—As this sports day falls on a Friday, you will not be able to sell meat of any kind.

Q.—How many sugar-preserves coupons become valid in April?

A.—Three sugar-preserves coupons can be used in April, $5 became valid on April 4 and $6 and $7 become valid April 18.

Q.—Has the price of butter been increased?

A.—On April 1st the price of creamery butter was increased four cents a pound. Prices for dairy butter remain at the same level as before.

PEG BELLE TAKES CROWN.—Pretty young winner of the title "Miss Winnipeg of 1946" is Joan Stirling, happily wearing her crown of office.

BETTER TO SHOUT

Little Mabel, aged six, had a part in the school exercises. She was much pleased and learned her part quickly and said it over loudly and rapidly. It ended with the words "and plead the cause of the poor and needy," which she shouted so loudly that she could hardly be understood.

Just before leaving for the exercises her mother decided to hear her say the part again and asked her to repeat it more slowly. Then she discovered to her horror that Mabel was saying "and feed the cows. They are poor and need it."

A Good Suggestion

Advertising Might Educate People In Principles Of World Co-operation
Use of newspaper and magazine advertising to educate people in the principles and concepts of world co-operation was suggested in an address in Toronto by Albert Bakovsky, Austrian-born founder of the educational research society. "If we can sell soft drinks and tobacco through the medium of advertising," he said, "it is just as plausible that we could sell education and spiritual belief through the same medium."

SMILE AWHILE

Clerk: "Would you like it mounted?"
Young Woman: "Oh, yes—he'll look nice on a horse."

Mrs. Snaggs: "Did I understand you to say Mrs. Perkins is interested in business?"
Mrs. Bitters: "Yes."
"What business is she interested in?"

"Everybody's!"
Wife (sorrowfully): "I've just received a letter from poor dear husband. She says she is feeling very seedy."

Husband (with a grunt): "I suppose that means she's going to plant herself on us."

Roy: "I can't figure out why you always yell 'stop' when I try to kiss you."
Patsey: "And I can't figure out why you always stop."

Mistress: "Maggie, I think I'll take one of the children to church this morning."

Maggie: "Yes, ma'am."
Mistress: "Er—which one do you think would go best with this dress?"

Sergeant: "I suppose you wish I were dead so you could spit on my grave?"
Private: "No, sir! Not me—I hate to stand in line."

The National Geographic relates that when one of the Pan American Clippers was starting for Hawaii, a steward asked a lady passenger if he might put away her coat.
"Oh, thank you," she said. "I'll be needing it later when I go out on the promenade deck."

Teacher: "Tommy, how many make a few?"
Tommy: "Three or four."

"How many make a dozen?"
"Twelve."

"How many make a million?"
"Very few."

The new Land Girl was doing her best, but she was evidently getting everything on the farm very strange.

Having an incubator explained to her, and being asked if she fully understood it, she put her head on one side, with a puzzled look, replied:
"Yes, but where does the hen sit?"

Have Never Smiled

But War-Shocked Children In Greece Are Being Taught

In Greece, travellers come upon small groups of children under an olive tree, listening to a teacher. The teacher usually stands, with a broken tree limb in his hand, tracing on the earth.

That broken branch and the teacher's memory are all the "school equipment" those children have. Pencils cost $2 each. There is no paper, no books. A fourth of the schools are rubbish and most of the rest damaged.

Many of the children have those queer big heads and twisted legs that come from too little to eat for too long. The teacher himself often is so malnourished that he needs help.

But the Greeks are determined the children shall re-learn the ways of peace, so they start these olive-tree schools.

This is part of the baffling job facing the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. U.N.R.R.A. is limited in what it can do for schools, and can spend no money on toys. Yet U.N.R.R.A.'s doctors think play now is so important to war-shocked children that they have a program in Greece called "to teach the children to smile".

Tens of thousands of children have no reflex action of the cheeks which we know as a "smile".

PRAISE OF MEN
Praise like gold and diamonds owes its value only to its scarcity.—Samuel Johnson.

Real joy comes not from ease or riches or from the praise of men, but from doing something worth while.—Sir Wilfred Grenfell.

Some natures are too good to be spoiled by praise, and wherever the vein of thought reaches down into the profound, there is no danger from vanity.—Emerson

Few persons have sufficient wisdom to prefer censure, which is useful, to praise which deceives them.—Rochefoucauld

We should examine ourselves and learn what is the affection and purpose of the heart, for in this way only can we learn what we honestly are.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Praised too dearly lov'd, or warmly sought, Enteebles all internal strength of thought.—Goldsmith

BELOW REQUIREMENTS

In a recent discussion, it was pointed out that 2½ acres of arable land are required today to feed a human being adequately. Total area of land at present under cultivation is said to be four billion acres. As the population of the world is slightly over two billion, this only allows (theoretically) two acres per person. But India averages only one-tenth acres per capita compared with eight acres of improved farm land per capita in Canada.

Vanilla vines are cultivated under trees large enough to afford shade because they cannot stand much direct sunshine.

SAM SHAPIRO was down to his last two-bits.

As he walked away from the Tremont poolhall along the crowded downtown sidewalk he slipped the coin into a pocket of his checkered coat. He tilted his black homburg down over one eye and for a few moments he muttered unkind words about all pool-players and their descendants down to the third generation.

That was the situation until suddenly into Sam's fertile mind there came the sixty-four dollar question: How was he going to hoist the remaining two-bits into a decent roll?

Sam didn't know exactly. Yet somehow he had always managed to stay in the dough, right from the days when he used to shoot marbles with the boys against the curbstone until later in life when he graduated to the poolroom.

Sam attributed his success to his great idea and to the fact that he was perhaps a little above the average man mentally. He also held the firm opinion that everything in this world was a racket and that everybody was out to beat everybody else.

He used to get so many brainwaves that the boys would always say: "Sam, some day you'll be president." But Sam was not interested. And anyway he had it from the grapevine that the job was filled.

Sam pushed his black homburg up a bit and scratched his noggin. A sure sign that he was thinking. The ideas began to come, slowly, and then faster, until they were buzzing around beneath the black homburg like a bunch of black flies.

Idea number one came first. It was to drop over to Joe's Lunch Room and meditate on the ways and means of upping the two-bits. Idea number two followed quickly. It was to put whatever he ate on the cuff.

Sam smiled. He took the quarter from his pocket and began flipping it up in the air and then catching it again. Just as he passed the huge Banker's Trust Building he missed a catch and the coin fell to the ground.

Before he could recover it a strange hand darted out from one side and picked it up. Sam turned quickly and saw an old, rather pleasant-faced beggar with a tin cup sitting on the bank steps. "You missed the cup, sir," the beggar said smilingly, "but I don't mind reaching—not for a quarter."

Sam's eyes popped. He stared at the quarter, now resting peacefully at the bottom of the beggar's tin cup. It was the only coin there. He wondered how good were the chances of getting it back.

They didn't seem so hot. He could tell that there was no use explaining—this bird wouldn't understand. And he knew that only a fool would try to match two-bits from a beggar's tin cup on a busy downtown street. He wished it was dark.

Sam scratched his noggin but all was quiet beneath the black homburg. The beggar's cheery voice spoke again. "You seem to be thinking, son," he said. "Will you tell me your name?"

"Sam Shapiro," Sam snapped. But he didn't know why he'd bothered to answer the question except that so far he hadn't thought of an angle to get the two-bits back.

"Sam Shapiro is a nice name," the beggar smiled. There was a strange quality about this man's voice that was unlike the usual run-of-the-mill beggars. A note of happiness almost, as though he was about to render some act of service to a fellow man.

But Sam was not one to appraise matters like that. Not was he in the mood. He even failed to notice the strange actions of the beggar who had produced a cheque book and fountain pen from an inside pocket and had started to write. When he finished he tore off a neatly written cheque made out to Sam Shapiro for one hundred dollars. He handed it to Sam. "Don't ask me the reason, son," he said in that same musical voice. "Just walk into the bank here and cash it. It's good."

Sam was puzzled. He took a little squint at the cheque and he almost said "crackpot" out loud. But then suddenly his eye rivetted on the signature. That did it. Hurriedly he said, "Thanks pal" and bounded up the bank steps.

He saw idea number three right in that signature. Everybody knew that E. Wilson Dodds was president of Banker's Trust. And already Sam could see Mr. Dodds' face when he informed him that a screwball beggar was outside handing out cheques with Mr. Dodds' signature on them.

It should be good for a five-spot at least, Sam calculated, and probably a couple of Dodds' good cigars to boot.

Inside the bank Sam hesitated for a moment. There were many doors and he didn't know which one led to Mr. Dodds' office. He stepped up to a nearby cage marked "Paying Teller" and held out the cheque significantly. "I'd like to see Mr. Dodds about this."

"Mr. Dodds' is out," said the teller. He took the cheque from Sam's hand with a courteous smile and looked it over. "It won't be necessary to see Mr. Dodds' about this," he said after a moment. "If you can identify yourself I'll cash it for you."

Sam gasped. He couldn't figure out what kind of a game these people were playing with him. Nevertheless they weren't going to catch him napping, so he looked the teller right in the eye. "I'm not trying to cash this cheque, pal," he said. "I'm only trying to inform you that there is a screwball outside writing cheques with Mr. Dodds' signature on them."

The teller laughed out loud. "It's quite all right, sir," that was Mr. Dodds'! He's one of the best. Used to often wonder if there was still such a thing as charity in this modern world. So today he put on that glaspige and decided to give one hundred dollars to the first ten people to have pity on him. . . . And let me congratulate you, sir. You are the first person to cash a cheque."

Have No Country

Many Germans Living In Elre Are Seeking Citizenship

There is a noticeable tendency in Elre these days towards naturalization into Irish citizenship.

This is the case particularly with Germans who have lived there for years. Many of them were in the hotel business, and in normal times they would not have needed to take Irish citizenship. Now, since they have virtually no country of their own and have no desire to continue as aliens, they are seeking to become citizens of Elre.

Long-time residents who have been usually well-conducted are given the necessary certificates. Their names read strangely in a country where the Murphys, the Kellys and the Burkes predominate. — Vancouver Province.

A WISE INVESTMENT

Canada Cannot Afford To Refuse Credit To Other Countries

Some find it difficult to understand how this country, laboring under the financial hanger from the war, and with a heavy tax burden, can afford to loan hundreds of millions to other countries. The answer is that it could scarcely afford to do less. Actually, the so-called loans are putting money in our pockets.

The word "loan" is something of a misnomer. We are extending credits to Britain and other European countries. With these, they must and will buy our goods. What they pay for them will make it possible for us to develop our resources of raw materials, and will pay the wages of thousands of workers. Without these credits, the money might lie idle, doing no one any good.

It is the velocity, not the weight, of money which gives it practical value. That is, perhaps, an oversimplified exposition, but it constitutes the fundamental principle, and it is a sound one.—Windsor Star.

RECIPES

SAVE FOR A RAINY DAY

Choose one of these rainy April days to make a day of it in the kitchen. If you've been shying away from making anything "extra" for your family or anyone else because of sugar being noticeably lacking, it's time to give them a treat!

Not all cookies or confections call for sugar. Some take just a bit. In crunchy corn flake chocolate patties, all the sweetening is in the chocolate itself.

Cream cheese cookies, which taste as good as they sound, require only a third of a cup of sugar and are out of the ordinary. Make both of them to give the family a lift.

Cora Flake Buns

1/2 pound sweet or semi-sweet chocolate
2 1/2 cups corn flakes

Melt chocolate over hot water. Add corn flakes and mix until each flake is coated. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto buttered baking sheet or waxed paper and set in a cool place to harden. Yield: 38 candies (1 inch in diameter).

Cream Cheese Cookies

1/2 cup shortening
3 oz. cream cheese
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 cup sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt

1 1/2 cups oven-popped rice cereal

Blend shortening, cream cheese and sugar; add lemon juice. Stir in flour, baking powder and salt which have been sifted together; mix well. Shape dough into small balls, roll in finely crushed rice cereal. Place on ungreased baking sheet; flatten with fork. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 15 minutes.

Yield: Three dozen cookies (1 1/2 inches in diameter).

Something Needed

To Convince Men They Are Needed On The Farms

Just now there seems to be a question of who will replace the aged farmers. With so many young people from the farms flocking to the cities and towns during the war years, the farm population has dwindled and many of those who have had a taste of city life are reluctant to return to the land.

It looks as though something must be done to draw back to the land competent and practical individuals who can make a go of farming. For the present the old people will have to carry on and do the best they can under the circumstances, but there is hope that eventually more war veterans will take up farming, after they have taken courses and gained some experience in agricultural practice.—Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

Until about 100 years ago, books were usually bound in wooden boards or temporary covers.

RADIOGRAMS

John Public likes his information given frankly, briefly, directly. That is probably the main reason why Stan Ross, C.J.C.A. commentator on current Canadian affairs, is so popular with the listeners. Mr. Ross has a knack of putting his finger on the topic that seems to be the immediate public concern, then he gives his views on the subject "straight from the shoulder." He wastes no words. He presents both sides of the picture fairly and squarely—then leaves it to the listener to form his own conclusions.

Occasionally he "steps on the toes" of some, but Mr. Ross contends that as long as the "toe stepping" is all in the interests of a better community, he's doing his duty as a radio commentator and as a citizen of Canada.

Mr. Ross' method of presentation has zoomed his popularity to great heights. Today he is considered as one of the best, if not the best radio commentator in Canada. He commands a very large listening audience on C.J.C.A. daily Monday through Friday at 12:25 noon.

Wedding Bells

COX—CURRIE

A quiet, but pretty wedding took place on Saturday Mar. 30 at the Centennial United church, Victoria, when Dorothy Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Currie of Irma Alberta, became the bride of E.R.A. Allen E. Cox, RCNVR, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Cox of Toronto. Rev. Roy Ashford officiated.

Given in marriage by Mr. Ashton, an old friend of the family, the bride wore a turquoise blue suit with brown accessories and carried a bouquet of red roses, carnations and gardenias. Miss Marjorie Adkins, wearing a smart grey suit with blue hat and corsage of gardenias and sweetheart roses, was the bride's only attendant.

The groom was supported by SPO Norman Plesch RCNVR.

Miss M. Merry played the wedding march.

A reception was held at the Kit Kat for the bridal party and friends. Mrs. Currie was assisted by Mrs. Adkins and Mrs. Ashton. Rev. R. Ashford proposed the toast. The honeymoon was spent in Victoria and vicinity, where the young couple hope to reside.
